She is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Tokyo researching contemporary Iranian culture. She moved to England when she was 19 years old as she believed that thinking and studying in different languages can open up new perspectives. In order to understand the world better, she decided to continue her research in Middle Eastern studies. Having lived in various countries such as Japan, England, Iran, and Germany, she values the communication beyond boundaries and regardless of categories such as nationalities and genders. When she was in London, she worked as an intern in BBC World Service Radio and TBS London Bureau and as a translator for NHK, and produced a program in the radio station at the university as well. In Germany, she co-founded the crowdfunding project and co-directed the documentary film, Berlin Transgression, featuring drag queens and transsexual artists based in Berlin. She is also working on the project to animate her personal experiences in Tehran.
